

Hindi satirical play staged

RONO HILLS, Nov 19: Be a job provider not a job seeker. The explicit message was given through the Hindi play "Babua Gobardhan" staged in RGU's mini auditorium today. Rangashree, a theatre group of Delhi, affiliated with National School of Drama (NSD), Ministry of Culture, Government of India, staged this Hindi satirical play under the aegis of the Department of Hindi, RGU.

The story moves around a pampered youth of middle class village family Gobardhan who is called as Babua by his parents. Not interested in further studies or skill development, Babua expects his relatives, working in metros, to help him get a good job through unfair means. But his relatives identify his strengths and motivate him to remove his weaknesses help him become a successful entrepreneur.

Founder of Rangashree and writer & director of the play Mahendra Prasad Singh had been a visiting faculty in different management schools for Entrepreneurship Development in Delhi for several years. He uses this play as a tool to generate awareness in youths to become an entrepreneur.

The play came to an end with lots of appreciation from audience. Among them Prof. Amitava Mitra, PVC, Prof. Sharma, Hindi Department expressed in his remarks that we did not realise how two and half hours completed with lots of fun, entertainment element and powerful message to the masses. Prof. Maltesh M, University Librarian being an amateur theatre personality opined that without much gimmicks, lights, props, make-up the play reached to every individual with explicit motivational message to the youths of today. Prof. Mishra, HOD, English Prof. S S Singh, HOD Hindi, Dr.D.K.Pandey, Assistant Librarian and students of various departments were enjoyed the play.
